New York City, NY

The New York Film Academy's flagship campus in New York City places students in the heart of one of the world's greatest metropolises. For its size, excitement, culture, and landscape, the city remains unparalleled — and plays a starring role in the projects and lives of our students.

Dynamic, rich in diversity, and always alive, New York City is the perfect training ground for the visual and performing arts. The city challenges and stimulates students on every shoot and every project, every step of the way. One can hear dozens of different languages, choose from the cuisine of six continents, and rub shoulders with diplomats, designers, celebrities, dignitaries, or musicians on any given day. NYFA New York City is at the crossroads of the world.

New York is a city of distinct neighborhoods, each with a unique rhythm and culture: the bustling shops of Chinatown and Spanish Harlem, the stately Museum Mile on the Upper East Side, the neighborhood brownstones of Park Slope in Brooklyn. New York City is about neon lights, taxi horns, street music, bookstores, landscaped parks, and 10 million inhabitants working together — each as unique as the next.

Our students in New York City have the opportunity to create their original projects in virtually every neighborhood in the city: from SoHo lofts to East Village bars, from Brooklyn delis to Times Square at rush hour. Feature films, television productions, and independent movies vie for locations and talent in this entertainment industry epicenter, but New York City is not just an incredible place to make films; it is a truly unique place to develop an artistic identity, explore, and build a community, whether a student's dream is to take photos around the city or to perform on some of the world's most famous stages.

Central Location

The New York Film Academy's New York City campus in Manhattan's historic Financial District is split between premier facilities on Battery Park and Broadway, steps from the iconic Charging Bull statue on Wall Street, the beautiful Hudson River Park, and the Castle Clinton National Monument in Battery Park. Our students are right in the heart of downtown Manhattan's most famous attractions with an extraordinary view of the Statue of Liberty from many of our classroom windows.

The world's largest subway system conveniently takes students wherever they want to go, from Harlem, to Chinatown, Coney Island, Central Park, and the Brooklyn Bridge. Our campus provides a haven from the hustle and bustle, and at the same time gives students a springboard from which to dive straight into the thick of city life.

Extracurricular Activities

"The city that never sleeps" offers as many exciting adventures and discoveries as there are people. For dining, film, nightlife, shopping, museums, and so much more, New York ranks number one in the world.

Cultural activities are unlimited, from the priceless collections of The Metropolitan Museum of Art to the delicious hot dogs at the renovated Yankee Stadium. For the film lover, New York is full of mainstream and independent theatres and world premiers, while theatre buffs can soak up Broadway plays, eight performances a week.

NYFA students live in a foodie's paradise of innumerable cuisines, and can explore the thriving nightlife of the West and East Village, Tribeca, Chelsea, and SoHo. Some of the best musicians in the world, from jazz to alternative to classical, play in New York City.

“Big Apple”

In the 1920s, a sportswriter for the Morning Telegraph named John Fitzgerald overheard stable hands in New Orleans refer to NYC’s racetracks as “the Big Apple,” so he named his column “Around the Big Apple.” A decade later, jazz musicians adopted “the Big Apple” to refer to New York City, and especially Harlem, as the jazz capital of the world. There are many apples on the trees of success, but when you pick New York City, you pick the Big Apple.

The Big Apple isn’t the only New York City name with an interesting history: Broadway’s original name was the Wiechquaeskeck Trail. It was an old Algonquin trade route.

New York City has 26 subway lines, 490 stations, and 660 miles of subway track. There are 6,374.6 miles of streets in New York City and about 6,400 cars. New York City has 578 miles of waterfront. The New York City Department of Transportation is responsible for 753 bridges and tunnels.

The world’s second largest department store, Macy’s covers 2.1 million sq ft of space and stocks over 500,000 different items and makes its home in NYC.

Parks

Many are surprised to learn that New York City ranks as the greenest city in America, with 52,938 acres of parks and open space out of 197,696 total acres. That means that 26.8 percent of New York City is set aside for parks. Central Park, Manhattan’s green oasis, is only number five on the list of the city’s 10 largest parks. New Yorkers jog, walk, bike, skate, horseback ride, ice skate, rent row boats, play basketball, softball, soccer, tennis, and enjoy special events and festivals in the city’s 1,700 parks and playgrounds.

The city’s parks are teeming with more than 750 different native species of animals and plants, including the endangered peregrine falcon, the sharp-shinned hawk, and white-tailed deer.

Central Park and the Bronx’s New York Botanical Garden offer guided bird walks, and spring in Queens brings thousands of migrating shore birds to the Jamaica Bay Wildlife Refuge’s 10,000 acres.

NYFA Cafe

The New York Film Academy Cafe, located at 10 Peter Minuit Plaza, is the ideal place to kick back and cool down with an iced coffee from La Colombe or an iced cold beer from Sixpoint. NYFA Cafe’s stylish structure, housed in a sculpture located in Battery Park, is a short walk from the New York City campus. The menu includes wings, sandwiches, breakfast, beer, wine, and a variety of caffeinated beverages. The Cafe is located across from the Staten Island Ferry Terminal and is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., and weekends from 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Students presenting their IDs may receive 20 percent off (not to be combined with other deals or offers).

Art in New York City

In New York City, every passing moment may hold a revelation to destiny, and every turned corner may spark a new journey. For the artistic soul, New York City is a mecca that is alive with unimaginable hope and inspiration. Here, students find themselves in the center of it all as the world’s greatest creators of the visual and performing arts converge.

New York City has always defined its sense of history with some of the most significant cultural and artistic movements, people, and institutions: from the Harlem Renaissance and Langston Hughes to Abstract Expressionism with Jackson Pollack; from the Sony IMAX theater uptown to the underground short film slams buried downtown; from the American Ballet Theatre to street performers.

There are over 180 museums, 500 galleries, and 40 major and independent movie theaters in the city. With numerous star-studded productions and avant-garde Off-Off-Broadway performances to choose from, the city never ceases to inspire and motivate the creative enthusiasm and artistic innovations of new generations.

New York City: A Filmmaking Landmark

First Film Screening in the U.S.

The first projected motion pictures ever seen in the United States were shown on the night of April 23, 1906, at Koster and Bial’s vaudeville house in New York City, on the site of today’s Macy’s department store. Thomas Edison himself helped run the projector.

First Location Shoot in NYC

The first movie footage ever shot on location in New York was filmed at 2 p.m. on May 11, 1896, by William Heise, a cameraman with the Edison Company. The footage showed 51 seconds of activity at the corner of Herald Square and 34th Street.

America’s First Movie Studio

The first movie studio in America, the Vitagraph Studio on East 14th Street in Brooklyn, was founded in 1903, sold to Warner Brothers in the 1920s, and then used by NBC Television in the 1950s. The studio was later the home of “The Cosby Show,” and continues to serve as an active production center to this day.

The “Big House”

In 1920, Paramount pictures opened its massive East Coast studio in Astoria, Queens. Known as the “Big House,” the 14-acre complex contained one of the largest stages ever built, a 50 seat screening room, and a publicity department equipped to handle 10,000 stills a day. Used by U.S. Army Signal Corps during World War II, it was refurbished in the 1970s and ’80s, and is known today as Kaufman Astoria Studios.

The first modern feature film to be produced as well as filmed in New York and its surroundings, “On the Waterfront” stunned the Hollywood establishment when it won eight Oscars, including Best Picture, at the 1954 Academy Awards. The following year, the second New York-produced feature, “Marty,” also won Best Picture along with three other Oscars.

Marilyn Monroe on 52nd Street

On the night of Wednesday, September 15, 1954, over 1500 onlookers gathered on the corner of 52nd Street and Lexington Avenue to watch Marilyn Monroe perform what would become her legendary “skirt-blowing” scene for “The Seven Year Itch.” Director Billy Wilder required Monroe to repeat the sequence through 15 takes before he was satisfied.

Set Decorations Become “Real”

In 1987, the tenement building set constructed on a Lower East Side street for the 1987 film “*batteries not included” looked so realistic that sanitation men removed prop garbage cans in front of the building and passers-by inquired about available apartments.

The accuracy of the coffee shop set built on a Tribeca street corner for the 1994 film “It Could Happen to You” encouraged several local residents to stop in and ask for a lunch menu.

Film in New York

Location, location, location! As some of the most coveted real estate in the world, New York City has been the setting of choice to some of the most popular and most distinguished films and television shows of all time. It is also home to the largest and most sophisticated world-class film and television production centers on the east coast, such as Kaufman Astoria Studios and Silver Cup Studios located in Queens, and Steiner Studios, at the site of the historic Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Los Angeles, CA

Known as the “Entertainment Capital of the World” and the heart of American cinema, sunny Los Angeles is home to media giants NBC/Universal, Warner Bros. Entertainment, ABC, and The Walt Disney Company, among others. The New York Film Academy's Los Angeles campus in beautiful Burbank places students in the heart of the entertainment industry, and offers them an ideal platform from which they can take advantage of the City of Angels’ many attractions. Students can expect excellent weather, a rich and multicultural population, and innumerable ties to the entertainment industry.

The New York Film Academy Los Angeles offers an array of programs to meet every student's needs, from professional certificate workshops and conservatory programs to graduate and undergraduate degrees in Filmmaking, Acting for Film, Screenwriting, Producing, Photography, Documentary Filmmaking, Graphic Design, 3D Animation and Visual Effects, and Game Design.

Our campus is located in the midst of Universal and Warner Bros. studios, and in many hands-on production classes, our students shoot on the prestigious Universal Studios backlot. For their individual film projects, students shoot in Los Angeles, where a wide variety of locations can be found. Students may choose to shoot in gritty, urban neighborhoods downtown; on a beach at sunset in Malibu; on the famed shopping strip of Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills; or on the boardwalk of Venice Beach. Indeed, one of the attractions of Los Angeles for the film industry has been the city's incredibly varied landscape — ranging from seaside to desert to mountain slopes and fruit groves. Students can take their cameras and crews to the hills around the city and to Sunset Boulevard, to the shops of Chinatown, West Hollywood, Koreatown, Little Tokyo, and to the oceanside cliffs of Santa Monica. In one day, a crew might film a Spy-Thriller in snow-capped Mount Baldy in the morning, and a Surf-Comedy in the afternoon.

Our screenwriting students can check into the Writers Guild of America library to read original scripts that can't be found on the Internet, then head over to one of Hollywood's famous “Movie Palaces” for a special screening. Acting students can study performance during the day, and then see a live studio performance that same night. Producing students have the opportunity to network with an entire city devoted to film production, and develop roots in the same terrain that shapes the industry itself. With ongoing productions throughout the city, there are countless options for students to pursue and hone their craft.

NYFA Los Angeles is in the heart of Hollywood. Students have unique entertainment industry opportunities, such as working on the prestigious Universal Studios backlot and screening their films in Warner Bros. screening rooms.

Learning on the Universal Studios Backlot*

Nothing “regular” at all is going on inside the Universal Studios Headquarters. This is where the movie magic happens; where Focus Features, the “little company that could,” brought us Oscar winners like “Brokeback Mountain,” “Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind,” and “Lost in Translation,” resides. Here is where Stephen Soderbergh and George Clooney housed the production offices for “Ocean’s Eleven,” and where the production departments for “Minority Report,” “Seabiscuit,” “The 40-Year-Old Virgin,” “Live Free or Die Hard,” and countless others brought their visions to the silver screen.

It is also where students at the New York Film Academy are learning what it takes to be the directors, screenwriters, actors, producers, and cinematographers. In many hands-on classes, students get the one-of-a-kind experience of filming on the Universal Studios backlot, a location many people can only see if they take the famous Universal Backlot Tour. Here, in the heart of the film industry, our students study their craft, develop their projects, and take advantage of the exciting array of opportunities at their fingertips.

Universal Studios is one studio with which the New York Film Academy has a special relationship. Since the Academy is located by the backlot of the Universal Studios, students have the unique opportunity to witness the importance of “studio life” to the Los Angeles area first-hand. Students also get the one-of-a-kind experience of shooting on the Universal Studios backlot, which many people can only see if they take the famous Backlot Tour. Within the backlot of Universal Studios, our students shoot on the same sets where film history is made. Be it the sprawling backdrop of Western Street or the edgy city streets of New York, the backlot of Universal Studios presents the filmmaker with locations as varied as their imaginations.

Over the hill and through the Cahuenga Pass is Universal Studios, where the “Desperate Housewives” acted out their operatic lives on the same street where the fraternity brothers of “Animal House” got themselves into a heap of trouble. Nearby, Michael J. Fox zoomed through the space time continuum in that sleek silver DeLorean to get “Back to the Future,” and Steven Spielberg’s Dreamworks created everything from “War of the Worlds” to “American Beauty.”

Venues in LA

While in Los Angeles, students should seize every opportunity to experience a show at these famous and beautiful performance venues.

The Hollywood Bowl

One of the most recognizable venues in Southern California, the Hollywood Bowl is a naturally occurring open air amphitheater that seats approximately 18,000.

Some of the most famous performers of all time have graced its stage: The Grateful Dead, Cher, Frank Sinatra, The Beatles, The Who, Nine Inch Nails, Fleetwood Mac, Ben Harper, Willie Nelson, Gwen Stefani, Radiohead, Coldplay, Aerosmith, Mötley Crüe, The Doors, Patsy Cline, Bob Dylan, Elton John, Pink Floyd, Judy Garland, Johnny Cash and more.

The Forum

The legendary “Fabulous” Forum is a spectacular indoor concert hall that has hosted stellar acts such as Jay-Z, Lady Gaga, Fleetwood Mac, The Eagles, Bruno Mars, Dixie Chicks, Metallica, and Prince.

The Walt Disney Concert Hall

A striking Frank Gehry-designed acoustical and visual masterpiece, the Walt Disney Concert Hall serves as the new home to the L.A. Philharmonic.

The Staples Center

Home of the Los Angeles Lakers, Kings, and Clippers, the Staples Center has also recently become the place for big-name entertainers to perform.

And More!

Other large-scale venues are The Arrowhead Pond (home of the Anaheim Ducks), the Greek Theater, Los Angeles Convention Center, Verizon Wireless Amphitheatre, and The Home Depot Center.

*All programs are solely owned and operated by the New York Film Academy and are not affiliated with Universal Studios.

Los Angeles Movie and Performance Art Theatres

In Los Angeles, classic movie palaces and state-of-the-art auditoriums can be found everywhere, and live shows abound in beautiful facilities. Check out the Los Angeles theatre scene and catch a show at one of these venues:

- _ Pantages Theatre
- _ TCL Chinese Theatre
- _ El Capitan Theatre
- _ The Greek Theatre
- _ Ahmanson Theatre
- _ Audiences Unlimited
- _ John Anson Ford Amphitheatre
- _ Dolby Theatre
- _ Mark Taper Forum
- _ The Actors’ Gang at the Ivy Substation

Sights to See

The Hollywood Sign

The Hollywood Sign started out as an ad for real estate development and originally read “Hollywoodland.” In 1973, the sign was deemed an official historical monument.

Hollywood Blvd.

A famous street great for catching a movie premieres, shopping, or spotting a star.

Sunset Blvd.

The Sunset Strip is Hollywood’s nightlife capital and one of the most heavily advertised streets in the world.

Mulholland Drive

The famous stretch of road that follows the ridgeline of the Santa Monica Mountains offers a fabulous view of LA.

The Beaches

Relax at the laid-back Hermosa Pier, take in the scene at Venice Beach, surf at Huntington or shop at Santa Monica. Each beach has its own traits and personality. Cruise the Pacific Coast Highway and you can run into all of them.

Santa Monica’s Third Street Promenade

Third Street is a vibrant location near the Santa Monica Pier. The street is blocked off to traffic so that the crowds that visit day and night can watch street performers, dine at some of LA’s finest restaurants, take in a movie, dance at a local club, relax at a local bar, or shop the night away.

Rodeo Drive

The most famous shopping district in America is only three blocks long on Rodeo Drive, from Wilshire Boulevard on the south to Santa Monica Boulevard. It is here that the rich and famous do their shopping, and where tourists window-shop while trying to spot movie stars.

Favorite Local Music Venues

The indie music scene has become an integral part of the Los Angeles culture, for LA is not only a city of dreams for actors and filmmakers, but musicians as well, and can foster rich collaborations between aspiring filmmakers and musicians.

Some of the venues that host local indie bands:

- _ Bootleg Theater
- _ The Echo
- _ The Mint
- _ The Smell

Southern California Amusement Parks

Los Angeles was home to the very first amusement park, and boasts a collection of some of the most famous amusement and theme parks in the world:

- _ Disneyland in Los Angeles
- _ Disney’s California Adventure
- _ Magic Mountain
- _ Knott’s Berry Farm
- _ Pacific Park, Santa Monica
- _ Universal Studios Hollywood

South Beach, Miami, FL

NYFA South Beach, Miami, offers an in-depth education in the visual and performing arts. Miami is a cultural hub, with its Art Deco District, world-class beaches, turquoise bays, and architectural masterpieces.

New York Film Academy South Beach, Florida offers an education in film and acting unlike any other, nestled in the thriving Miami arts district of South Beach. "The Gateway of the Americas," Miami is a city of diverse culture, sun, and energy, with gleaming white beaches, turquoise ocean waters, a beautiful Art Deco district, and a famed nightlife and restaurant scene that draws visitors, artists, and industry leaders from around the world. Miami is an artistic hub, the location of choice for popular television shows like "Jane the Virgin," "Ballers," "Dexter," "Miami Vice," "Burn Notice," and more, and also the setting of beloved major films including "Scarface," "Any Given Sunday," "Caddyshack," "There's Something About Mary," "The Birdcage," and 2016's Academy Award-winning film for Best Picture, "Moonlight."

Nestled on Lincoln Road in the center of South Beach, our Miami campus offers a wide range of degree, conservatory, and workshop programs designed for students to achieve their learning goals in the amount of time that is right for them. Students have the chance to study the discipline of their choice in a culturally rich area that is teeming with gorgeous Art Deco buildings, beautiful beaches, and a diverse population, making it an ideal setting for students to shoot and film projects throughout the area.

Through our philosophy of learning by doing, South Beach students achieve more in less time through intensive, project-based curriculum. Students create their own original work while experiencing and exploring the exciting life of the city, from the contemporary arts festival Art Basel to the landmark street of Calle Ocho, the heartbeat of Little Havana.

At New York Film Academy South Beach, Florida, students are never limited to just studying books and attending in-class lectures, but rather are immersed in the practical, hands-on challenges of their discipline from the first day of class, creating a truly extraordinary educational experience. Our student body in Miami is extremely diverse and students study with classmates that come from all around the world, further enriching each student's education.

Gold Coast, Australia

NYFA AU Gold Coast is located in a premier facility at Southport, directly across from the Gold Coast Broadwater with a popular waterfront promenade, large estuary and attractive parklands — all perfect for filming.

Our new, expanded Gold Coast campus is a 22,000 square feet, two-level, state-of-the-art facility located at Southport Central, encompassing a 90 seat theatre, automated dialogue replacement (ADR) room, editing rooms, post production rooms, production workshop studio, acting rooms with sprung floors for voice and movement classes and a sizable equipment room.

Southport is the leading educational and creative arts precinct of the Gold Coast, easily accessible by public transport and full of amenities (libraries, shopping centers, cafes and restaurants). NYFA AU Gold Coast also maintains its own production studios on-site at the renowned Village Roadshow Studios, giving students the opportunity to do their production work on the backlot. Village Roadshow Studios has been the filming location of many Hollywood films including “San Andreas,” “Unbroken,” “Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Men Tell No Tales,” “The Shallows,” “Kong: Skull Island,” and “Thor: Ragnarok,” among many others.

Golden beaches, tropical rainforests, rugged country and a modern city skyline are just some of the backdrops that keep the biggest filmmakers in the world coming back to the Gold Coast. With an average of 300 days of sunshine every year, this region is commonly known as “beautiful one day, perfect the next,” and as a surfer’s paradise.

Florence, Italy

Florence, the birthplace of the Renaissance and a city that has inspired and nurtured artists for centuries, is the hub of the New York Film Academy in Europe. In 2008, the Government of Tuscany and the Tuscan Film Commission invited NYFA to offer our world-renowned programs in a newly renovated Renaissance-era building overlooking Piazza San Lorenzo, across from the Basilica di San Lorenzo, one of the most famous churches in Florence, which houses the Medici Chapels, the burial place of the principal members of the Medici family. It is also steps away from the famous Piazza del Duomo, Santa Maria Novella, Ponte Vecchio, and the Galleria, which houses Michelangelo's David.

NYFA Florence is focused, intensive, and extremely hands-on, requiring participants to work with self-discipline, energy, and commitment. Currently, NYFA Florence offers courses of various lengths in filmmaking and acting for film. Florence and all of Tuscany provide perfect open-air sets for shooting movies and learning the craft of filmmaking. Students are also encouraged to explore and utilize other picturesque towns, such as Fiesole, Pisa, Lucca, Siena, and Chianti and to utilize these small towns and the natural environment of Tuscany as their sets — all a short bus or train ride away. Florence and Tuscany have been the set for many famous movies, such as "A Room with a View," "Hannibal," "Under the Tuscan Sun," "The English Patient," "Inferno," and many others.

NYFA Florence's programs challenge students to interact with their surroundings while developing professional-level skills. Filmmaking students find themselves directly intermingling with the Italian people and culture, putting their knowledge to work as they make a series of short films. Acting for Film students perform in films shot on location, bringing stories and characters to life that reflects the culture and history of Florence.

As students write, direct, shoot, edit and act in their own films, they can deepen their understanding and connection to the Italian culture through the creative process of filmmaking and acting for film. Florence becomes more than a historic locale; it is a place for inspiration, innovation, and immersion. Italy's inhabitants become the characters in their stories. Italy's traditions and customs shape their scripts, and Italy's unique locations provide striking environments for original student films.

The first republic in Europe and the home of the Medici dynasty, Florence at its zenith was the cultural capital of the world. Florence today still buzzes with this vibrant history and inspires the next generation of creative minds. Florence is considered one of the world's most outstanding cities to learn and practice the visual and creative arts, as the landscape bursts with beauty and stories abound in every palazzo and building.
